

Monash Internship by Natasha Wilson

The Monash University Careers and Employment Internship is one that I would highly recommend to all Monash students, no matter what year of study they are in. This is an internship which is flexible enough to suit any students' needs- no matter how busy. Yet in the two months of this internship program a range of opportunities are offered to students to expand upon their academic knowledge and learn new skills. During my time as an intern I assisted with the careers days, where I had the opportunity to liaise with potential employers, help with installations and attend employment information sessions. Yes those two days are a lot of work, but actually being there for those two full days gave me more time to talk to employers and research opportunities than I otherwise would have had!

I would say the best feature of this internship is the opportunity to apply the skills learnt throughout my time at university. I've been able to participate in promoting Monash University Careers and Employment, which has given me an appreciation of the important work they do and the dedication they have to help students achieve their goals.

The internship runs for two months but is as flexible as possible, Monash University Careers and Employment understands the time pressures on students and is happy to help you work out a time commitment which suits both you and them. So even if an internship doesn't sound like it's for you, drop in anyway, have a look around, talk to the staff or visit their website, you're sure to find something that helps you on that path to your future career.
